ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Workmen poured concrete and planted palm trees on the sprawling $400 million Disney World entertainment-vacation complex Friday as a sparse opening day crowd mingled with dancing bears and strolling minstrels.

Central Florida traffic experts were prepared for a massive backlog of cars that never materialized.

Although Disney officials said no crowd estimate would be available until mid-evening, Florida Highway Patrol Sgt. Jim Humphreys said they gave him an unofficial turnstile count at noon of 2,800.

"If we get a total of 12,000 on opening day we'll be very happy," said Charley Ridgway, a Disney World spokesman.

Workmen labored around the clock to get the huge amusement park and hotels ready but of the five theme areas in the Magic Kingdom, one, Tomorrowland, offered only one attraction and three of the other four—Adventureland, Frontierland and Fantasyland—were only partially ready. Main Street USA was finished.

Tomorrowland won't be ready until mid-November, well after the formal opening of Disney World, scheduled for the weekend of Oct. 23 with Bob Hope and other celebrities to be on hand.

Although the crowd was sparse, Disney officials did not appear to be overly concerned.

Disney officials had not extensively promoted Friday's opening. Of the projected five hotels, only two—the Polynesian Village and the Contemporary—are under construction. They are open but neither is at full capacity.

Riders on the extensive monorail system around the park saw almost as many employees and workers as paying customers. Construction materials were scattered about. The songs of the minstrels and the "alohas" of the sarong-clad girls at the Polynesian Village were punctuated by the workers' hammers.

SOME TRADITION OMITTED

Chou Takes Part In Chinese National Day Celebration

PEKING—Agence France Presse—Chinese Prime Minister Chou En-Lai and other Government leaders, along with tens of thousands of ordinary Chinese citizens took part in National Day celebrations here Friday. But the celebrations omitted the traditional giant parade in Tiananmen Square and most of the celebrating took place in the city's parks.

For the first time, the People's daily omitted its traditional Oct. 1 editorial comment. And it did not publish the customary large photos of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung and Vice Chairman Lin Piao.

From 9 a.m. until midday, tens of thousands of Chinese and several hundred foreigners (members of delegations, diplomats and others), warmly applauded by the crowds, watched performances by revolutionary theatre groups, folk dances, acrobats and conjurers. Clusters of red flags waved in the warm sun.

At midday, as the stands were taken down and the foreign groups left, Chou went for a boat trip on the summer palace lake with Prince Norodom Sihanouk, of Cambodia and his wife, Princess Monique.

Others present were Deputy Premier Li Hsien-Nien, Yeh Chien-Ying, a politburo member who is deputy chairman of the Central Committee's military commission, and by Kuo Mo-Jo, deputy chairman of the National Assembly.

Absent were the politburo members in command of the army, air force and navy, respectively Huang Sheng, Wu Fa-Hsien and Li Tso-Peng, who have not appeared in public for nearly three weeks.

The People's Daily appeared with red typography, as is usual for special days, with a front-page slogan: "Let us celebrate the 22th anniversary of the foundation of the People's Republic of China. Long live our great leader Mao Tse-Tung. May he live a very long time."

The front page contained an article on the progress of the Chinese economy and a report on Thursday night's foreign ministry reception. At this event, contrary to custom, no political speeches were made.

The inside pages contained messages of greeting and press articles from friendly countries, and the back page contained the music for two songs: "Chairman Mao Tse Tung Is the Red Sun of Our Heart" and "Long Life to The Great Chinese Communist Party."

Quotes and poems by Chairman Mao as well as photographs from his life and on the history of the Chinese revolution were on display in the parks.

For people without admission tickets to the parks there were performers on several street corners.

Among groups of "friendly foreigners" who joined the Chinese in the festivities were former Japanese Foreign Minister Aiichiro Fujiyama, and his delegation who favor normalization of relations between Japan and China.

Also present were the writer Han Suyin, three Black Panther leaders led by Huey Newton.

Soviet Ambassador Vassili Tolstikov was greeted by smiling girls waving flowers when he arrived at the summer palace. There were also large groups of young North Koreans and Indo-chinese.

'Ginger' Causes Heavy Crop Damage

BELHAVEN, N.C. (AP) — Water flooded through homes, fields and businesses Friday in eastern North Carolina as rain-swollen storm Ginger moved inland, losing strength but leaving widespread damage in her wake.

Rain and high tides from the storm, which hit the coast with hurricane-force winds Thursday, swelled the Pungo and Pamlico rivers and flooded stretches of highway up to five miles long. Soybean, peanut and corn fields in this farming area were inundated.

It was not immediately known how long the fields would be flooded and what the damage to crops would be. But Dr. Guy L. Jones, extension agronomist at North Carolina State University at Raleigh, estimated crop damage would amount to several million dollars.

Before the storm moved inland, property damage in the Morehead City area alone was estimated at nearly $1 million by spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute. Further estimates awaited reports from flooded communities, some of which were without telephone service.

But the worst-hit area apparently was Belhaven on the banks of the Pungo where it widens to flow into the sound.

At one point Thursday night, water was more than four feet deep. When the river receded Friday, water remained trapped in low-lying areas, still covering many streets and fields.

At Washington, 30 miles east at the tip of the wide mouth of the Pamlico River, water rose into dozens of riverside homes and into six businesses on the outskirts of town.

Meanwhile, Ginger crept slowly northwestward near Raleigh. The U.S. Weather Service changed its designation from a hurricane to a tropical storm during the night and demoted it to a tropical depression Friday morning.

As a tropical depression, Ginger had highest sustained winds of 37 m.p.h., compared to the 90-mile-an-hour gusts that uprooted trees and overturned mobile homes along the coast.

The storm hit the mainland after wandering in the Atlantic for more than three weeks.

SYLVANIA PLEDGES $20,000

Employees of GTE Sylvania Friday pledged $20,000 toward the United Fund campaign goal of $198,700. Eleven community services share in the UF campaign. Some 85 per cent of the employees signed up for payroll deductions. Additionally, Sylvania contributed a corporate gift and executive personnel make additional per-

The Allegheny River will recede one-tenth of an inch from Friday's reading of 3.2, and remain at that level through Sunday in Warren. Tidioute recorded a 4.0 reading yesterday, and can expect a similar decrease along its banks.

Further south—in Hickory—the flow will be of a steadier nature, 4.1. That's the level it reached Friday afternoon.

Ushers were Albert Moon, Pat Gibson, Denny Howe, Shelly McKinney, Rose Taydus and Patty Bower.

80,000 Miners Strike, Shut Down Coal Fields

WASHINGTON (AP) — A freeze by some 80,000 miners virtually shut down the nation's production of soft coal Friday, but contract negotiations continued and the Nixon administration expressed hope for an early settlement.

The Bituminous Coal Operators Association said the wage-price freeze had complicated the talks but was not in itself a significant stumbling block.

"The wage-price freeze is no excuse for procrastination and we have no intention of permitting it to become such an excuse," he said.

Bituminous coal is mined in more than 20 states, most of it in West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

The United Mine Workers of America has been unable to reach agreement with the coal operators on wages, welfare contributions and other significant contract language," Boyle said.

The union refused an industry proposal to extend the contract that expired Thursday midnight.

The union is seeking to boost the current top wage of $37 per day to $50 and to at least double the current 40-cent per ton industry royalty payments to its Welfare and Retirement Fund which has operated some $66 million in the red the past two years. The fund still has an unspent balance of nearly $113 million.

New wages and benefits could in no event be placed into effect during the freeze," said an industry spokesman in unsuccessfully urging day to day extension of the old contract.

The Nixon administration has urged unions and companies to continue to seek contract settlements during the freeze for increases that could go into effect after the freeze expires Nov. 13, but subject to whatever new economic restraints the government may impose.

Backs No-Fault Insurance Program

PITTSBURGH (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg testifying before the state Senate Insurance Committee here Friday, urged adoption of the Shapp administration's no-fault auto insurance plan, claiming it would cut premiums by 10 per cent.

Denenberg said the present insurance program for personal injury has created a system riddled with fraud, padded claims and ambulance chasing.

Blasting opposition from lawyers groups to the no-fault plan, Denenberg said:

"Let's face it. The trial lawyers aren't crying over the plight of the accident victim. They are crying over the fact that no-fault is going to simplify the system and in the process dry up a lot of their billion-dollar business."

Opposition to the plan was voiced by Allegheny County Judge John P. Hester, who said it takes away victims' rights to be adequately compensated for injury.

"My major objection is the bill removes or denies people the right to recover full and adequate compensation for injuries sustained from negligent operation of a motor vehicle," the judge said.

8 Lawmakers Escape Tax Bite In Foulup

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania wage earners who were paid Friday should have felt the first nip of the state's new 2.3 per cent income tax. But in an ironic foulup, eight state lawmakers who voted for the levy escaped its initial bite.

A total of 11 legislators, who received their $600 paycheck for October earlier this week, did not have the required $13.80 withheld from their pay.

The foulup apparently occurred in the office of the House comptroller which overlooked the deduction because the 11 representatives do not have money withheld monthly for federal income tax. Instead, they file quarterly estimated returns.

Withholding for the federal tax is optional, but state law requires that the 2.3 per cent levy be imposed on each paycheck.

House Comptroller Jean Francis said her office was in such a rush to process the paperwork for the new tax that the 11 were overlooked.

"From now on," she said, "the tax will be withheld no matter what anyone says."

The 11 representatives were: Speaker Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia; Minority Leader Kenneth B. Lee, R-Sullivan; Eugene Gelfand, D-Philadelphia; Louis Sherman, D-Philadelphia; Robert K. Hamilton, D-Beaver; John H. Anderson, R-York; Forest Hopkins, R-Erie; Guy A. Kistler, R-Cumberland; William G. Piper, R-Bucks; H. Jack Seltzer, R-Lebanon, and Charles D. Stone, D-Beaver.

Anderson, Piper and Stone voted against the tax.

Additional winners were Andy Kuzma with two blue ribbon steers, sister Susan Xuan Thinh, commander of the operation, told AP correspondent George Esper at his headquarters at Tay Ninh.

Agriculture classes and 4-H clubs in the northwestern part of the state. The averaged price received during the sale was 34 cents per pound.

Miss Kuzma's steer was shown by her brother, Andy, because at the time of the show she was in Harrisburg competing in the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Contest, representing the Warren County Dairy Association. She finished in the top ten.

Allied Air Strikes Fail To Stop Commies

SAIGON (AP) — Despite a nightlong pounding by Allied air strikes, North Vietnamese troops launched another ground attack early Saturday against a beleaguered South Vietnamese artillery base in eastern Cambodia.

Initial field reports carried no details on the results of the fighting at Fire Base Alpha, where South Vietnamese rangers and Cambodian troops were expected to make a second attempt Saturday to relieve its perimeter.

But the base five miles east of the rubber plantation town of Krek was still in Allied hands and South Vietnamese troops were expected to make a second attempt Saturday to relieve its perimeter.

The South Vietnamese relief column pulled back to Krek Friday after it drove eastward on Route 7 to within two miles of Alpha, then bogged down against heavy enemy resistance.

Tactical fighter-bombers were then called in to pound the enemy positions through the night, Associated Press Correspondent George Esper reported from operational headquarters at Tay Ninh. Some of their bombs hit within 400 yards of Alpha's perimeter.

U.S. B52 bombers also flew missions against the enemy positions early Saturday, reports said.

Another relief column of South Vietnamese paratroopers Friday broke the enemy siege of a second artillery base, Tran Hung Dao, 15 miles to the south of Alpha on the Vietnam side of the border.

The breakthrough ended five straight days of enemy shelling of the installation.

The action at the two fire bases capped the sixth day of a North Vietnamese offensive along the Cambodian-Vietnamese frontier in a region 60 to 90 miles northwest of Saigon.

Both South Vietnamese field commanders and their top U.S. advisers said the situation appeared more favorable than in the preceding five days of North Vietnamese heavy rocket and mortar attacks.

"The situation is much better than before," Lt. Gen. Nguyen Xuan Thinh, commander of the operation, told AP correspondent George Esper at his headquarters at Tay Ninh.

"The enemy shelling now has become very weak. We are pursuing the enemy."

The senior American adviser to the South Vietnamese, Maj. Gen. Jack J. Wagstaff, said: "I'm very much encouraged, but we are not out of the woods yet."

Wagstaff emphasized, however, that the border situation was "no critical."

Allied commanders claimed that U.S. B52 bombers and smaller fighter-bombers wiped out a Big North Vietnamese supply base near Market st. near Seventh ave. is simply a weighted mulch.

He explained that mulch used to seed lower portions of the bank is lighter and would dissipate in the air when sprayed such a great distance. The heavier density mulch carries better.

"I don't know why they make it green," he said. "It could be just about any color."

Backs No-Fault Insurance Program

PITTSBURGH (AP) — State Insurance Commissioner Herbert Denenberg testifying before the state Senate Insurance Committee here Friday, urged adoption of the Shapp administration's no-fault auto insurance plan, claiming it would cut premiums by 10 per cent.

Denenberg said the present insurance program for personal injury has created a system riddled with fraud, padded claims and ambulance chasing.

Blasting opposition from lawyers groups to the no-fault plan, Denenberg said:

"Let's face it. The trial lawyers aren't crying over the plight of the accident victim. They are crying over the fact that no-fault is going to simplify the system and in the process dry up a lot of their billion-dollar business."

Opposition to the plan was voiced by Allegheny County Judge John P. Hester, who said it takes away victims' rights to be adequately compensated for injury.

"My major objection is the bill removes or denies people the right to recover full and adequate compensation for injuries sustained from negligent operation of a motor vehicle," the judge said.

False Alarm

Ends In Arrest

William T. Prendergast, 46, of 203 Lexington ave. has been arrested for calling in a false fire report on the evening of September 27, police said Friday.

The call was received at Warren's central fire station at 7:44 p.m. Wednesday evening. The caller said he was phoning from 101 Elm st. concerning a fire at 203 Lexington ave.

When fire trucks arrived at the scene no blaze was evident. The criminal investigation that followed showed that Prendergast was responsible.

If you have a beat up old rocking horse in your car—and you don't know where it came from—call the Crippled Children's Committee office and they'll tell you.

It seems a janitor was instructed to place the rocking horse in the car of Mrs. Jean Proud, executive director of the committee, and by mistake it was placed in someone else's car.

The rocking horse was to have been used in the pre-school program for crippled children which is to start Monday at the YWCA.

The rocking horse can either be returned to the YWCA, or it will be picked up. The phone number of the Crippled Children's Committee office is 723-5730.

Sugar Grove Area News And Notes

The Sugar Grove Ruff Riders held their second meeting of the month at the United Methodist Church with Carol Hale presiding. An overnight trail ride was organized for October 2 and 3. An eight mile ride to Ivan Johnson's camp in Wrightsville will begin at 3:00 p.m. Riders are to meet at the Shepherd's home in Sugar Grove. A wiener roast will start the evening activities with games and a campfire at night. A sunrise worship service will be led by Rev. Dwayne Thorson of the People's Church, Sugar Grove on Sunday, Oct. 3. A pancake breakfast will be served by the members after the service. Parents of the members are welcome to attend the event. The next regular meeting will be held in Monday, Oct. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

A Ruff Riders committee meeting was held Sept. 21 with Carol Hale, Cheryl Davis Mrs. Eugene Wilson, Mrs. Gary Shepherd and Mr. Gilbert Schultz to arrange the Sugar Grove Ruff Riders Candy Bar Sale to begin Oct. 8. The club would like to have horse breastbands and blankets to complete their parade outfits.

Last year the members raised money to make riding vests and purchase white hats. The candy bars will sell for 50 cents apiece and the support of the community is urged for this enthusiastic club's project. It is planned for more parade participation next year.

Mrs. John Firth entertained the Sarah Circle at a dessert luncheon meeting. Rev. Dan Bower offered the table prayer.

Mrs. Victor Spatifore was present and talked on the Bazaar to be held on Nov. 19 and is being sponsored by the Association. Mrs. Spatifore is chairman of the project. Mrs. Arthur Cody presided at the meeting and conducted the study of Galatians and Mrs. Clare Chapman presented the devotions. Mrs. Lloyd Williams announced the Lake Erie Presbyterical meeting at Franklin on Oct. 12. Notes of thanks were read and The Least Coin gift was received. Mrs. Richard Hensler of Buffalo was guest.

Market Closes Week With Slight Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market closed the week Friday with a moderate gain, extending its rally into its second day.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 6.79 to 893.98. On Thursday, the Dow rose a little over 3 points.

Analysts said the upturn was primarily the result of bargain hunting. The market had been sliding in recent sessions, they pointed out, and many issues were becoming oversold.

The moderate volume indicated that no great buying spree had developed, analysts continued. Still, they regarded the advance as a positive sign, since it developed in spite of fairly negative news developments.

Strikes by coal miners and longshoremen dominated the economic news background. The still unsettled international monetary situation and uncertainties over what will follow the expiration of the current wage-price freeze were major background factors affecting investors, brokers noted.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange totaled 13.41 million shares, compared with 13.50 million shares Thursday.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,300 common stocks closed up 0.33 at 54.66.

Of the 1,688 stocks traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 889 advanced, and 502 declined. There were 48 new highs and 46 new lows.

The Associated Press 60-stock average rose 2.0 to 325.5, with industrials up 2.2, rails up 1.1, and utilities up 1.5.

Airlines and metals were lower. Chemicals, oils, and rails were mixed. Other stock groups were generally higher.

Caterpillar Tractor was most active on the Big Board, closing down 2 1/8 at 48 3/4. A block of 180,700 shares traded during the session at 49, off 1 1/8.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price-change index rose 0.12 to 25.54. Of the 1,131 stocks traded, 538 advanced and 325 declined. Volume totaled 4.03 million shares, compared with 3.84 million shares Thursday.

Oiler Halfback Randy Loudin
Drags Warren Man For Yardage

★★★★ SCORES THREE T.D.'S IN 24-0 ROUTE ★★★★

Ted Kaufman Clobbers Warren

By DENNY BONAVITA

OIL CITY—School is back in session in Oil City, and the Oilers are back in the thick of the East Division race in the Northwest Football Conference.

Hampered by a one coach staff until Thursday by a teacher's strike, pre-season favorite Oil City suffered through two lackluster performances, one a stinging 24-20 upset by Grove City last week, and seemed destined to spend the season below the high-flying Franklin Knights and Warren Dragons. They changed that destiny in a hurry Friday night, administering a good, solid 24-0 beating to Warren to hike their loop mark to 3-1 and drop the Dragon's 2-1.

Ted Kaufman, injured early in the game, came back to be the big scoring hero, scoring on runs of four yards, one foot, and 21 yards, with powerful Mike McNeerney amassing chunks of yardage throughout the contest and flashy Randy Loudin taking off on a 65-yard sprint to set up the Oilers' first score, in the second quarter period.

Oil City's offensive line—especially 218-pound end Casimir Barsz and 170-pound Gary Davis—held the key to the contest. Time and again they knocked Warren's defensive ends momentarily out of the play, and before the line backers or secondary could rotate to fill the gap, the Oiler runners, ably generated by quarterback George Sterner, would be off and running.

Even discounting Loudin's long gallop, the Oilers decisively out-performed the Dragon offensive on the ground, piling up 263 yards rushing to Warren's 89. The Oilers got some breaks—back to back penalties on Warren's second series of plays forced the Dragons back from a first down at Oil City's two yard to the Oiler's 31, and a face-masking violation against Warren gave the Oilers a jump on their second T.D. early in the third quarter after the Dragon defense, for two plays, had looked capable of adjusting to the Oil City wing-T off-tackle slant.

But Oil City made as many breaks as it got, intercepting three Warren passes, stiffening on Warren's most serious third quarter penetration with outstanding plays by guard Tom Fedorek and 220 pound center Steve Clark to stop the Dragons at OC's 27, and defending the Dragon running game to near perfection.

Warren, on the other hand, didn't get many breaks, and when it did, didn't come up with a nine-play drive that reached the big play to capitalize on them. A bad punt center gave the Dragons the ball on Oil City's 25 midway in the first quarter, and quarterback Rob Young hit split end Mike Piehuta on a flat pass to move the ball to the Oiler's 14. Tom Bright plowed through a big trap hole to the Oiler five, and then came the bad news. After another trap had reached the three, Warren was assessed 30 consecutive yards for holding on one play and sending an illegal receiver downfield on another.

That killed the drive and the quarter, and Oil City quickly stung the Dragons. After an exchange of punts gave the Oilers their first second quarter series on their 20, Loudin took off like a cheetah around his right end, getting a great block from Moore. He outran Piehuta and just did fall to Tom Bright's desperation tackle 65 yards downfield. Moore got three, and two by Jim Stromdahl and a seven-yard Piehuta reception to reach Oil City's 25. But a fourth-down pass failed, and the Oilers took over. They punted, and Warren took to the air—which was fine with Sterner. He stepped in front of a Young pass to the Dragon's 33 on Warren's second play. After an incomplete pass, McNeerney showed he had speed as well as power with a 10-yard sweep, and Kaufman swept his left end on the second play of the fourth quarter. Stromdahl, rotating to intercept him, fell, giving the speedy senior just a bit of an opening. That was all he needed, as he zinged 21 yards into the corner for the final TD.

With the troublesome Barsz hauling in the PAT pass on a hook-out pattern to end the scoring period.

Those hopes hit bottom on the next series. Moving from its 37, Warren got good running on four carries from Bright and two by Jim Stromdahl, and a seven-yard Piehuta reception to reach Oil City's 25. But a fourth-down pass failed, and the Oilers took over. They punted, and Warren took to the air—which was fine with Sterner. He stepped in front of a Young pass to the Dragon's 33 on Warren's second play. down pass failed, and the Oilers took over. They punted, and Warren took to the air—which was fine with Sterner. He stepped in front of a Young pass to the Dragon's 33 on Warren's second play. After an incomplete pass, McNeerney showed he had speed as well as power with a 10-yard sweep, and Kaufman swept his left end on the second play of the fourth quarter. Stromdahl, rotating to intercept him, fell, giving the speedy senior just a bit of an opening. That was all he needed, as he zinged 21 yards into the corner for the final TD.

Pirates In Frisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — There was an understandably sober reaction in Los Angeles when the San Francisco Giants finally nailed down the National League's conclusive West Division championship and the victory wasn't exactly greeted with cheers in Pittsburgh, either.

It was no secret that the Pirates, champions of the East, were rooting for the Dodgers to take the West, and for an entirely selfish reason. They simply play better baseball against Los Angeles than they do against San Francisco.

In 12 meetings with the Giants this season, the Pirates won just three times. Against the Dodgers, on the other hand, Pittsburgh held an 8-4 season edge.

And to make matters worse, the Pirates must open the National League best-of-five playoff series against the Giants Saturday in Candlestick Park, a place they consider an absolute house of horrors.

"All you have to do is look at the records and know who we're rooting for," said Pirate star Roberto Clemente last week as the Giants and Dodgers were locked in their life-and-death struggle.

The records show that the Pirates have won just two games and lost 10 against the Giants at Candlestick in the last two seasons.

Both Pirate victories over that stretch were turned in by veteran Steve Blass, so it's no surprise that he will open the playoff series against the Giants. San Francisco will counter with Gaylord Perry, 16-12.

Manager Charlie Fox was dripping champagne in the happy Giant dressing room Thursday night after San Francisco locked up the West on Juan Marichal's 5-1 five-hitter against San Diego. But he was coherent enough to name his rotation for the Pirates.

"It will be Perry Saturday, John Cumberland Sunday and Marichal on Tuesday," said Fox. And the happy little Giant skipper added a word of warning:

"Perry and Marichal have been pitching just wonderfully," he said. "With a couple of breaks, they both could have won 20 games."

Marichal finished with 18 victories, none of them more important than the masterful one he turned in against the Padres to clinch the title.

"We know the Pirates will be tough," said Fox. "We've got to be able to control their hitters and I think we can."

Perry will be working with three days rest. He went the route Tuesday night, protecting the Giants' one-game lead by beating the Padres 7-1. Cumberland, pickup last season from the New York Yankees, gave the Giant staff a much-needed boost early this year and finished with a 9-6 record.

The weather forecast called for a 50 per cent chance of rain for the first game of the best-of-five series—to be nationally televised by NBC at 1 p.m., EDT—and will determine the American League playoff open-

A's In Birds' Cage

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles begin defense of their world championship Saturday by sending Dave McNally out to pitch against the Oakland A's and Vida Blue—admittedly moody, and possibly tense, on the eve of the American League playoff open-

Series representative. Blue, the early-season pitching sensation who won 17 games by the All-Star break but only seven thereafter, was the chief topic of discussion in both dressing rooms Friday after the teams were forced to forego batting practice because of a steady rain. The only guy unwilling to discuss Blue was Blue himself.

"Don't start asking questions," Blue said as newsmen surrounded him at his dressing cubicle. "I'm not going to answer them. I'm going to go back to the hotel and sleep."

Asked if there was any specific reason for not answering questions, Blue said sharply: "Vida Blue's reasons. Sorry, it's one of my moods."

Blue's mood was taken by some to indicate he may be at a bit tense on the eve of his first playoff series, particularly against a club as tough as the Orioles, who take an 11-game winning streak into their bid for a third straight American League pennant.

But Oakland Manager Dick Williams didn't appear concerned about Blue's blue mood, or the fact he hasn't seemed to be the same southpaw pitcher the second half of the season that he was during a sensational first half in which he was constantly compared with Sandy Koufax.

"I don't think this being his first playoff will have any effect on him after the first pitch," said Williams. "We're not concerned about him—he's beaten Baltimore the two times he pitched against them."

Neither of Baltimore's two leading sluggers—Frank Robinson or Brooks Robinson—was about to suggest that the first half Blue was any different than the second-half Vida Blue.

But Brooks did think the Orioles' 11-game winning streak and five straight victories over the A's gave Baltimore an edge.

TELL IT LIKE IT IS!

A Pirate sponsor has been striking up the band nearly all summer for a catchy old diddy called, "California here we come."

Now that they're there—the Pirates—I wonder if they really want to be. Fate dealt a stacked deck out to the western Pennsylvania heroes Thursday evening when the Giants climaxed the Western Division's hotly-contested race.

Poker sharks may not call a couple of aces—Marichal and Perry—and a trio of clubs—McCovey, Mays and Bonds—an unbeatable hand; but they cannot deny that the mentioned above are a full house. As they say, the cards read for themselves.

If you have done your homework on the Giant—Pirate series for the past eleven years, you'll find that the Steel City crew has only swiped two series 1960 and 1965—in that period. Furthering your study along this line will reveal to you the eye-catching fact—the Pirates have only taken two games in two years on the "Barbary Coast."

Convincing statistics aren't they? A check of the '70 record books indicates that the Giants have won nine out of twelve for the season. The disparity between the two clubs is frightening for Pirate fans, and rightly so. San Francisco isn't where they want to leave their hearts in.

A player-by-player matchup will befuddle the best of baseball men's expertise. At nearly every corner the Pirates equate or surpass the Giants in strength. What is it? What mysterious or unexplained spell does San Francisco cast?

Pitching, San Fran may have the slight edge with a Marichal-Perry as opposed to Ellis-Blass combo. Ron Bryant, Jerry Johnson and Steve Hamilton are wonder pitchers on the short notice call. Dave Giusti is about the closest Pittsburgh has to a bullpen staple. On the bench, Pittsburgh has depth backed up to the locker room. Giants are only adequate in that department.

Manager Charlie Fox held his club together at times by nothing more than rolls of tape. McCovey, as you, I am sure, are aware, is playing at less than full capacity with a torn hand and knee problems. Wonderous Willie Mays is an out-patient in the whirlpool tub, while Tito Fuentes has been gamely hobbling around second base with a severe ankle sprain.

A veteran of the 1970 playoffs, Danny Murtaugh hit the nail on the head Thursday when he said, "Whoever's hot is going to win this series." With a short five-game series, how true his statement is.

The Pittsburgh-San Francisco skirmish is blotted with question marks. If statistics are an indication, and history really repeats itself, Pittsburgh is definitely under the gun.

I'm looking for the Giants to win the shebang in four games, and lose it all to the Orioles in a six-game World Series.

How about you?

Boys are reminded of the Punt-Pass-and-Kick competition at Beaty Field this morning at 9:00 a.m., sponsored by the Ford Motor Company and its affiliated Midtown Motors. Warren Jaycees will handle the judging.

The Grand Prix

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. (AP) — Mario Andretti showed up at Watkins Glen Friday to qualify his Ferrari for the U.S. Grand Prix—with very little hope of actually driving in the $260,000 event.

The three-time U.S. driving champion is committed to compete Sunday in a 300-mile race for USAC championship cars at Trenton, N.J. But, as he put it, "My heart is here at the Glen and there's always a possibility that Trenton will be postponed again."

He will be joined in Saturday's final session of time trials by Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., who also is committed to Trenton.

Woods Returning To Pittsburgh?

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Baseball announcer Jim Woods is out after two years with the St. Louis Cardinals. The St. Louis Globe-Democrat said today.

Woods' contract expires in December. The paper said he is leaving the club and may return to Pittsburgh, where he helped announce Pirate games for 11 years.

No replacement has been named but the paper said the club might seek an exballplayer to share the duties with Jack Buck.

Woods came to St. Louis after veteran announcer Harry Caray was fired. Woods announced for the New York Giants and Yankees.

Nature's Mushroom: A Tempting Delicacy Or A Deadly Poison

By BOB CLEVER

Mushrooming is gaining in popularity as generations of all ages apparently try to identify with the "in" crowd by returning to nature. The amateur could be "out" before he is "in".

The lure of the wild mushroom on the chill autumn morn could be as deadly as the wail of those beautiful sirens of Greek mythology—Scylla and Charybdis—stationed at the entrance to the Straits of Messina to charm Homer's sailors to their death.

A lump of jelly in a fallen log, a row of glaring yellow shelves down the trunk of an oak, mounds of white dotting the front lawn, dark-colored bodies resembling a Christmas tree, a sphere resembling an abandoned white basketball—all of these are mushrooms. Some delight the taste buds; some produce drunkenness; some induce visions, some sicken, and some kill.

There are thousands of varieties, 3,000 in this hemisphere alone, ranging in color from the tan of the little mushroom of the field to crimson, yellow, blue, green, white, black or a combination of two or three of these. The cap can be smooth, pitted, tufted, dotted, warted, convoluted or spongy.

Mushrooms are fungi, members of the enormous and varied group of living things which are responsible for decay. Without them, green plants long ago would have destroyed themselves. Unlike green plants, they cannot manufacture their own chlorophyll but must obtain nourishment from others, living or dead.

A large part of the higher mushrooms, called saprophytic, draw their nutrition from decomposing bodies of plants—mainly the forest humus and waste of wood or dead stalks of plants.

A second main group is formed by the parasitic species. These small, microscopic plants draw their nutrition from the living bodies of plants and animals.

Halfway between the saprophytic and the parasitic are the saproparasites. They attack first the dead part of a tree, say a dry branch; then multiplying their mycelium (rootlike structure) in it they spread also to the living parts of the trunk. Finally they attack the whole tree and in course of time destroy it. Thus nature has established a law to prevent the overpopulation of green plants.

Another interesting group takes its nourishment from the fine rootlets of certain plants without destroying them. The waste products of the mushroom are advantageous to the green plant. This mutually advantageous symbiosis is called mycorrhiza.

Fungi reproduce asexually, by the formation of new cells, and sexually in a manner somewhat different from that in green plants or in animals.

The strange way in which copulation takes place is proof that fungi are organisms of an extremely ancient origin, falling into the same period as that of the green plants.

When an organism arose for the first time on earth which was able to form its body from anorganic carbon, another (fungi and bacteria) arose to decompose the organic carbon combinations into anorganic ones in order to form in nature the circulation of carbon. Had this not happened the green plants would soon have bound all atmospheric carbon and would have perished for lack of food.

The visible portion of the plant—the fruit—usually seen above ground is a swollen part of the mycelium (underground) which continues to reproduce year after year. Circles of growth, or fairy rings, have been measured to be 300 to 400 years old. These are formed as the mycelium moves outward in ever-increasing circles in search of nutrition.

Cultures of mycelium are grown in commercial laboratories. These are planted in abandoned mines and quarries where mushrooms then are commercially produced—more than 165 million pounds per year.

In nature, when the mycelium is mature enough to reproduce, a sudden rain or a damp night provides the needed stimulus and the fruit springs up with a force sufficient to crack rocks or sidewalks. Millions of spores fall from the underside of the

PRETTY BUT INEDIBLE

The members of the Russula family run the gamut from excellent to inedible. This Russula lepida is the only inedible variety of this species. Beautifully colored a vermillion red, its flesh is bitter like resin. Similar in appearance, the Russula cynaxantha, violet purple or lilac and dark green in color, is an excellent edible mushroom.

cap in a matter of hours.

Some varieties appear only fleetingly above the earth; the little mushroom that rose so proudly at dawn may be gone by noon. But the plant is not dead; it lives on unseen to bring up its fruit another season.

The size, shape and structure of mushrooms varies greatly, as does their desirability as a food.

Mushrooms cannot be regarded as an outstandingly valuable food because the nitrogenous substances, which immediately appear as the most valuable ones, occur in such forms as to make them largely indigestible.

Since they are difficult to digest, it cannot be recommended that they be eaten in large quantities, especially by sick persons and persons suffering from indigestion.

Mushrooms are more a delicacy than a food. They are excellent as garnishing of another easily digestible dish, or as seasoning which gives an excellent taste to some insipid dishes.

They are so highly valued as foods because they contain much of nitrogen substances and little of fat, containing the valuable lectithin and cholesterin as related substances. The most valuable substances are mainly salts—about one per cent. They contain about as much water as vegetables do.

There is no general rule which can be applied for distinguishing the edible from the poisonous species. This is an innate talent which many find difficult to attain.

Everybody should, therefore, gather only those species which he knows really well and which he can recognize under all circumstances.

In doubtful cases it is better to throw a mushroom away than to get a poisoning.

Acidity or bitterness is not a distinguishing feature of a poisonous species—it is at most an indication that the mushroom is too bitter in taste and inedible for that reason.

The most poisonous mushrooms neither burn nor are they bitter, nor do they smell or sting the tongue particularly strikingly.

The fact that a silver spoon turns black in contact with the mushroom does not mean that it is poisonous, nor does the fact that the cap cannot be peeled.

The only safeguard against mushroom poisoning is the ability to distinguish species of mushrooms according to their botanical character. Considered to be the best illustrated in this respect is "Mushrooms according to their botanical character. Considered to be the best illustrated in this respect is "Mushrooms" by Albert Pilat. Book stores have available field guides for the amateur.

An expert in the field with innate ability is undoubtedly the best reference, but these persons are difficult to find.

Of the 50 species growing wild in America which are edible, then, experts urge that amateurs concentrate on what have been called "The Foolproof Four."

First is the peerless morel. Its Christmas tree shape and its dark, coral-like cap make it easily identifiable.

Then comes the shaggymane, never served in restaurants because it has just a few hours of perfection before the cap dissolves into an unsavory inky fluid. Resembling white shako hats with brownish tufts sticking out, most shaggymanes are no longer than a child's hand, although a few reach heights of 20 inches. The incomparable flavor is best brought out by steaming for five minutes and then adding a

ONLY SOMETIMES PALATABLE

These members of the Lactarius family are palatable only when specially prepared. Fried in butter, lard or bacon, with the addition of onion, pepper and salt, the acrid taste disappears. Boiled, they are not good. The flesh is white, then slightly yellowish, firm and hard. They contain plenty of milk which escapes in white drops.

VERY GOOD EATING

The whitish Agaricus campester, above, found in open fields and on lawns is a good, edible mushroom. The gills under the cap in the young are vividly pink, then for a long time Indian red, later dark chocolate brown to almost black, fairly broad. The stems are barely longer than the cap, usually white but rarely with a light pink tinge. Agaricus campester can be confused only with other species of Agaricus, and all of them are edible and good. It can be distinguished from the Amanita by the pink gills whereas the poisonous mushroom has white gills. The Agaricus does not have a poison cup (volva) at its base. The size can vary, as evidence by the smaller specimen being held.

Mushrooms

touch of cream or melted butter.

The sulphur shelf grows in rows of yellow or orange shelves on trees and logs and does not look like something to eat. Its taste is similar to white meat of chicken when fried, stewed or chopped in croquettes.

The puffball's name describes it well, as no stem can be seen. It is white, firm and fleshy and can be of golfball dimensions or, like the one discovered in Minnesota a few years ago, measure two feet in height and weigh 45 pounds. The imaginative cook can prepare puffball steaks, breaded cutlets, or creamed puree of puffball.

The lure of other species is so strong that many hunters ignore the danger, although danger there is. A single mouthful of certain mushrooms belonging to the Amanita family can bring on one of the most agonizing illnesses known to man. Death claims about half of those stricken. Yet the Amanita is so delicious that, just before being shaken by the first seizure, one might ask the cook for the recipe.

Most poisonous mushrooms are not so virulent, bringing stomach upsets rather than death.

Poisonous and edible varieties often look alike. In 1963, reportedly one of the best mushroom seasons in recent French history, 45 experienced mushroom pickers died of poisoning and a far greater number were sickened.

In many instances, what might be poisonous or sickening to one person might not be to another.

Not all poisonous mushrooms are unpleasant in their effects. One Amanita causes intoxication. Others of the Psilocybe species, found most often in Mexico and South America, induce a visionary state and have been revered as sacred by Indian tribes for generations. A chemical substance, psilocybin, isolated from them, has become the newest of the mind drugs used by psychiatrists and sensation seekers.

The incredible properties and seemingly miraculous birth of mushrooms caused primitive peoples to view them as supernatural. Still today, the more we learn about them, the more we are seized by their strange fascination.

But unless the amateur is certain that the species he has gathered is nonpoisonous, he would be better advised to purchase his mushrooms from a commercial source.

One deadly Amanita phalloides, which thrives among Warren County's edible mushrooms, accidentally cooked with any of the edible species—Agaricus campester, Agaricus hortensis or even Amanita rubescens (of its own family)—could mean death to an entire family. There is no known anti-venom to the Amanita phalloides poison. Symptoms may not set in from eight to 40 hours after eating, a dangerously long incubation period.

The lure of the wild mushroom could be your Scylla and Charybda or it could lead to gastronomic delight.

NOT POISONOUS

Although a member of the Amanita family, related to the deadly poisonous phalloides, the vaginata is edible. It too has the membranaceous mostly white volva at its base but does not have the membranaceous remnants of the volva below the cap on the stem.

DEADLY

One bite of this Amanita phalloides, which grows among the edible mushrooms of Warren County, could be fatal. There is no known anti-venom for this most poisonous of all mushrooms. This species—which includes edible varieties—is readily identified by the large soft bulb rounded below, subspherical, surrounded by a half free, white and lobate volva. The volva projects fairly high from the soil and in young specimens is tinged yellowish greenish. Amateurs often mistake this variety for the pleasant smelling and highly desirable Tricholoma equestre (somewhat rare) and the champignons (Agaricus).

ON THE COVER

To eat or not to eat those shapes of fungi not familiar to the mushroomer is one of the problems of the amateur. Those shapes that to him most look like a mushroom may be the least desirable and often may be poisonous. One of "The Foolproof Four" recognized by authorities is the sulphur shelf which grows in rows of yellow or orange on trees and logs and does not look like something to eat. Its taste is similar to white meat of chicken when fried, stewed or chopped in croquettes. Violent death can come to the person who cannot consistently identify by botanical characteristics the edible, inedible and poisonous mushrooms or fungi. (Photos by Clever)

Learn About Benefits

Thirty-six years ago Congress established the Social Security program. Its purpose was to assure the aged of at least a minimum standard of living after retirement. But it is much more than that today, something the average worker doesn't always understand. Over the years Congress has broadened the provisions of the system to where it presently constitutes a form of family insurance.

A recently published booklet "Social Security Information for Young Families" details the benefits accruing to the young family at a time of crisis.

It states in part: "If you have worked long enough under social security—and most workers have—you could count on a continuing cash income for yourself and your family if you become disabled, and your survivors would receive monthly benefits if you should die. And, of course, you are earning retirement protection while you work.

"Social Security survivors and disability cash benefits can mean that the financial burden will be greatly eased—that the family can stay together—that children can complete their education—that disabled children, including those who are severely mentally retarded, can receive a lifetime income—that a disabled worker and his family can be sure of an income that will continue as long as he is unable to work. A disabled person may receive rehabilitation services to help him return to productive work. These services may be paid for by Social Security."

These are facts every young worker should be familiar with. For, as the booklet points out, the social security deductions are not simply payments towards a retirement plan, but towards security for the worker's family throughout his working years. And the time to learn what benefits can be expected is before a crisis develops, not afterward.

Copies of the booklet can be had by asking for Booklet No. 35 at local Social Security offices.

ON THE RIGHT . . .

The Air War

By William F. Buckley Jr.

Professor George Stigler of the University of Chicago, who along with John Kenneth Galbraith writes the most eloquent prose in the English-speaking world on the subject of economics, has the advantage over Galbraith of being more often right than wrong. And one thinks of him, apropos of the great transatlantic airfare war. He ended an essay a few years ago by saying, simply, that notwithstanding the rise of technology, competition remains the greatest friend of the consumer.

The critics of the free economy are forever telling us how much extra money we pay out every year to feed the monopolists. Senator Fred Harris, who is running for President, recently tossed out the figure one hundred billion dollars. Asked exactly how to explain that, he fumbled about, unable to come up with many illustrations of prices artificially sustained. He might have mentioned the airlines. But of course it would have been an inappropriate moment to do so, precisely because the air war is really on.

The initiative of Lufthansa, which has simply refused to be governed by the international body that has been setting air fares ever since the World War, has caused a great scramble, and yelps of pain from overburdened airlines. It is not an argument against TWA or against Pan American to suggest that if there isn't enough business to sustain the two of them on competitive routes, they should merge.

Ten years ago, when the situation looked rosier, Pan American executives were whispering that they would like to be permitted to fly a passenger to England for one hundred bucks. At the time, Pan American was allegedly blocked by BOAC. BOAC, a nationalized airline, was struggling along inefficiently, developing its own redundant airplanes for the sake of the national pride. At one point, a member of the House of Commons observed that it would be of net benefit to taxpayers of Great Britain if they would offer twenty-five pounds to every potential client of BOAC as a bribe not to fly BOAC.

But the English were very stiff on the point of not permitting the fares to decline, and word finally wafted in that no airline that undercharged its passengers in such a way as to embarrass BOAC would be permitted to land in London. If one plans to fly to England and is told one cannot land in London, that tends to put one off; and so the English had their way.

Now it is the Americans who reach out for protection. It is unlikely that the United States government will intervene with threats to forbid Lufthansa or the other airlines from setting down at Kennedy Airport. That is the kind of pressure we may yet use against the supersonic airplanes now being developed. But if we invoke it, it will be in the name of Ecology, not protection. As it stands, the American airlines will need either to improve their efficiency, or to merge.

It is to everyone's benefit to make available to those who would travel the great facilities of the jet airplane. Granted, there must be an economic flaw. It does not do to paper the house, as they call it on Broadway when you give away tickets rather than demoralize the cast. But surely the demonstration has been made, during this fervid summer, that the rates are too high. It was the charter airplanes that made that demonstration, and to their resourcefulness the traveling public should be grateful.

And, through all the commotion, one acknowledges the force of the market, the best friend of the consumer.

A decade ago, Mr. William Rickenbacker proposed that the airlines solve their problems by selling wholesale their entire seating capacity at public auctions every six months or so. The buyers would then handle the tickets much as theater agents handle seats for Broadway plays. If you are willing to wait, you pay less. If you are willing to go at a moment's notice and sit in a seat which would otherwise be empty, you pay still less. If you insist on going the day before Christmas, you pay more. Object: to fill the planes. And to relieve the carriers of the job of merchandising their services, a function which is after all extrinsic to the operation of an efficient airline. An interesting idea.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Slips Restricted Data

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON—While a Senate subcommittee considers a multi-billion dollar anti-trust loophole on patents, the subcommittee's trusted chief counsel has been slipping the patent lobby restricted data from committee files.

The $33,000-a-year chief counsel, Tom Brennan, has, without the knowledge of the subcommittee's chairman or members, provided the lobby with copies of a staff version of the bill creating the patent loophole.

The bill is still under consideration by the committee. Yet Brennan has brazenly assured the American Patent Law Association that it will be out in time for him to brief the group on it at its October 21 meeting.

The bill is sponsored by Sen. John McClellan, D-Ark., and contains amendments by Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., the ranking committee Republican. It has undergone vast transformations since its introduction and has been opposed wholly or in part by anti-trust lawyers in the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission and Ralph Nader.

The rich patent lawyers fiercely deny it, but many opponents feel the bill would allow huge corporations to flay consumers with practices that would be criminal under present anti-trust laws.

The bill would leave the consumer unprotected against giant patent cartels which would be free to fix prices and destroy competition by dividing up markets, the consumer men argue. In the guise of clarifying the patchwork patent laws, they say, the new bill would allow corporations to squeeze billions over the years from consumers and small companies.

Nevertheless, Brennan has connived with the very lobby his subcommittee is supposed to scrutinize. His activities are detailed in astonishingly frank documents from the lobby's own files.

On August 16, for example, Phillips Petroleum's veteran patent expert, Paul Gomory (who is also chairman of the local bar association's Patent Law Committee) sent a select group of fellow patent lawyers an unusual packet of information. It was for "strictly personal use," Gomory cautioned in an enclosed note.

The packet contained a staff version of the bill which, Gomory said, "was made available to me by Tom Brennan."

"Tom Brennan expects (the bill) to be voted on and reported out by the subcommittee soon after Congress convenes. I am informed by Tom that this version of the bill is final but for some amendments..."

Gomory's note then surprisingly admitted that the key provisions of the bill "originated with the 'Tuesday Group.'" This is the nickname for an elite corps of the patent lobby which holds Tuesday meetings.

And Gomory's note said further that an offshoot, the "Tuesday-2 group" was "actively reviewing and revising the language" of the bill—a little like a group of hungry foxes setting their own quota for chicken consumption.

Brennan, to make sure that the national patent lobby also got word of what was going on in the inner sanctum of his subcommittee, sent copies of his marked up bill to at least four other top patent lobby groups.

When we reached him at his Capitol Hill office, Brennan rejected our suggestions that there might be something wrong with sending material, which he properly sent to staffs of committee members, to the patent lobby, but not to the public. "That's a red herring," he huffed. Brennan said his assurance that the bill would be passed in time for his speech was only an "estimate." And he denied that when he leaves his 11-year post with the subcommittee shortly that it will be to practice patent law.

Gomory lengthily defended both the bill and his dealings with Brennan.

"I wouldn't be caught dead with something I'm not supposed to have," he said of the committee documents. Brennan had only sent them out for his and other patent lawyers' comments, he insisted.

ADDICTS SPEAK

To keep heroin out, U.S. bases in South Vietnam won't allow most Vietnamese on the premises. But Vietnamese military police, who come and go as they please, have been smuggling in wholesale lots of heroin.

This charge has been made by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., in a private report to the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. The report summarizes his findings in Vietnam and his interviews with GI addicts.

Quoting an addicted Air Force sergeant from Ben Hoa, Murphy alleges: "Vietnamese military police would bring in 200 vials (of heroin) a week. The Vietnamese MPs had access to the base, and the Air Force pusher would meet them and make the exchange. Two hundred bottles sold for $6 a bottle."

Vietnamese who were barred from the bases would approach GIs in Jeeps to hustle heroin. An addict just back from Vietnam, now being treated at Lackland Air Force Base, Tex., told Murphy that Vietnamese troops in the field "would come up to our vehicles and press a thumb to their nose in a 'snorting' fashion, indicating, 'Do you want some heroin?'"

Here are other verbatim quotes that Murphy picked up from GI addicts:

+ "My habit in Vietnam was $20 a day. Here (in the U.S.) it is two Sony hi-fi sets and a half dozen watches"—all, of course, stolen and resold.

+ An Army nurse told Murphy that "the marijuana smoke on some of the flights home is so thick the air turns blue."

Murphy urged that hopeless addicts be discharged from the service and sent to civilian treatment centers. And he has asked the Air Force to "de-brief" returning GI addicts on where they got heroin in Vietnam and to send this intelligence back to U.S. military authorities in Vietnam.

Conversational Counselling And Compost

By Bernie Wingert, County Agent

I have been truly amazed at the great numbers of people who absolutely refuse to believe that there can be any connection between the winter weather and the amount of fat which the Wingert cat is now laying on his bones. Ah well, there were people who could not believe that Columbus would find land by sailing Westward from Portugal. No more weather predictions from here!

Speaking of Columbus reminds me of a patriotic song which we used to sing in school. One kid always sang it "Columbia, the GERM of the Ocean." And there was another little mistake that was made . . . "America, America, God's shed is braced on Thee." I liked those song sessions the first thing in the morning. We sang songs with strange titles, "The Star Spangled Banner", "Loves Old Sweet Song," and "Glory, Glory Hallelujah." That was so long ago that all the kids thought this country was a good place to live in. Now that everyone knows better the songs are of much higher quality!

I really started talking about Columbus because that's where the Annual Meeting of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association will be held next Friday evening at 8:00. The ladies of the Columbus Church always prepare one of the best "annual dinner" meals that you can find anywhere.

October and November are Annual Meeting months. Every organization that I know of has set a date and written for a speaker. My date book is getting full of evening meals, and meetings where the new directors are elected and the accomplishments of the past year are read.

There are annual meeting speakers who inspire, there are those who spread enthusiasm, there are others who spread joy, and there are still others who make me wish I could be home beside the fire.

Actually the most inspiring fellow I ever heard closed his speech with a perfectly appropriate quotation—"This is a difficult situation but let's take the bull by the tail and look our future squarely in the face."

The future of Agriculture in Warren County is not entirely predictable. But the 1969 Census does show some changes over 1964. I have a preliminary copy which cost me 25 cents, and I'm guarding it carefully until regular copies are available. In 1964 there were 720 farms with an average size of 155 acres. By 1969 there were only 419 farms, 176 acres in size. The interesting set of figures however has to do with sales. 18 farms sold over $40,000 worth of product. 63 were between $20,000 and $40,000, 72 were in the $10,000 to $20,000 category. 47 fit in the $5,000 to $10,000 class and 53 were way down between $2,500 and $5,000. One hundred and fourteen farms were classified as part time. I believe it's safe to say that there isn't much future for the farms with less than $10,000 income. A lot of Warren County farms are now only places to raise a family with the income actually coming from the job in town. There's nothing wrong with this. Country living is good for your health.

I'm reminded of the old lady who always lived on a poor scrub farm. Each year when the leaves would flash their brilliant colors over the land she'd fold her hands and breathe a fervent prayer that the Lord wouldn't see fit to take her while autumn was visiting the hills. When I'm out working in Warren County or Miller Hill, Scandia or Davy Hill, or perhaps in the Brokenstraw bottom land, I breathe the same prayer only I do it in spring, summer and winter as well!!!

They Had Minds Of Their Own

It was at Lake Pennesseewassee, in southern Maine, that I was whisked back into the late 19th century. I was after a right-of-way for a log landing on the shore of this lake. The owner of the section of shoreline that interested me was an eccentric widow. She lived in a mansion that must have covered an acre of ground facing the lake.

I was ushered into the old mansion by a maid who had seen many winters. The house was elegantly furnished with Victorian period furniture, and bric-a-brac. Books and magazines were piled high in every conceivable corner. One immense room had some 40 windows and two great square pianos.

After being led through labyrinthine hallways I finally reached the sitting room of the lady of the house, and took a high-backed chair facing her.

She wore a pair of over-size horn rimmed spectacles perched precariously on a large hawk-like nose. A white and black bandana was bound tightly about her head. She wore a dress that had once been the height of fashion in the days when McKinley was President.

Before I could discuss my business with her, I had to listen for ten minutes to her one-way "conversation." During that time I learned that her late husband had written most of the stories that had appeared over the years in the "Youth's Companion"; that she had adored listening to Paderewski, whose playing was "simply marvelous"; that Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt was poison to her; that she didn't like Mr. Roosevelt; that she was particularly soured against Adolph Hitler, but not so much so against Benito Mussolini.

When I suggested that dogs and horses were better than some people, she pounced upon me and demanded to know what earthly good dogs were. She pointed out that dogs were dirty and chased the deer. I countered with the remark that dogs carried fewer harmful germs in their mouths than people.

By this time, I had given up all hope of securing a right-of-way to store logs from hurricane blown timber on her shore line. When I got up courage enough to broach the subject to the "dowager queen" of Lake Pennesseewassee, she said that she would be glad to give permission to use her shoreline for storing logs. She added that she hoped that the logs would be kept there all summer so that the young people who insisted upon bathing naked at night on her beach would be thwarted.

She operated the general store in the little New Mexico village by the boiling springs. The high cliffs that fenced in the village in the narrow canyon bottom held off the sun's direct rays until high noon. Anyone living in the canyon long enough was a candidate for claustrophobia.

She swore like a lumberjack down on his luck on skid row, and she had out-lived two husbands. A three-and-a-half-pack-a-day chain smoker, she ate strong pickled peppers by the jar in place of candy. She hated Mexicans and Indians, and exploited them at every chance. "They are dirty and thieving," she once said to me. And yet she had set up shop where Mexicans and Indians predominated.

In her store, she waited on customers in the same old red bath robe that she had worn for years. The only exception was during deer season. For two weeks she dolled up in plaid checked "choke bore" riding pants, a bright cow girl shirt, and shiny cow boy boots decorated with green butterflies.

The tame turkeys she raised netted her a tidy profit during wild turkey season. There were always enough turkey hunters who were willing to pay her handsomely for the privilege of shooting her domestic birds rather than return home empty handed.

The Victorian lady from Maine and the tough old "cow girl" from New Mexico had one thing in common. They both had minds of their own, and no one could push them around.

Price Freeze Applies To Jobless Pay Hike

By Richard Haratine

The 115,000 jobless drawing Unemployment Compensation benefits when Gov. Shapp signed increases into law this week can't share in the $21 jump, from $60 to $81 weekly, until next year. The Wage and Price freeze applies here—too. Meanwhile, Representative Daniel Beran, Montgomery County Republican, says he has it straight from Federal emergency operatives that UC increases between now and the end of the freeze on Nov. 19 may also be disallowed. Labor and Industry Secretary Paul Smith says his OEP pipelines say there's no conflict. But OEP itself says "the matter is under study". ## The Reader Speaks

Dear Sir:

Many who have just returned from the Tax Office, will have no difficulty in understanding the feelings herein expressed. It certainly came as a welcome breath of fresh air to hear that our Borough Council had refused to spend more money on the proposed Community Action Plan. Not in Washington, not in Harrisburg, have we seen any sign, or heard any word that gives us hope the long slide toward insolvency and inflation can be reversed. But in our own little town Council there were men who had what it takes to say "No".

Of course, the reaction was inevitable and predictable. There are always bureaucrats who will "view with alarm", and there are always special interest groups whose pet projects are curtailed. Of one thing we can be sure -- those Councilmen who had the courage to stand up and say, "No" will be assailed during the next few days to reverse themselves. If you, a taxpayer, feel the limit has just about been reached, why not give your Ward Councilman a friendly supporting call.

Yours truly,

A Taxpayer

The Wedding Rehearsal Dinner

By NATALIE WILLIAMS

There are four ways to take care of this important occasion. You can arrange the dinner at a restaurant and pay a ton—and that's no fun with the HCL (High Cost of Living) these days. You can have it at the home of the groom's parents and Mom spends all day in the kitchen—and that's no fun either. You can hold it there and have it catered—which works well but the menu is usually limited and that costs a pretty penny, too. You may have close friends who are good cooks and ask them if they would do it for you.

You can guess what happened before you read further. We write a food column...friend's son getting married...would we do the rehearsal dinner. The we in this case is the writer and her husband, close friends of the parents of the groom.

Getting back to the editorial (are you thoroughly confused now?) we'll tell you what we did and how you can vary preparations for the menu we chose. All of which should give you lots of ideas, should you have occasion to plan a similar dinner. A lot depends on what is available, how many people are expected, and how much you can afford to spend.

We'll say two things, though. A dinner at home for an occasion such as this, where people are free to roam around and change conversational partners, is a lot nicer than a sit-down dinner at a restaurant. And the writer proved that she knows what she's writing about—the compliments came so fast we're afraid our halo is about to slip down and choke us.

First, a word about atmosphere. Our friends have a lovely family room and we like lots and lots of candlelight for such a romantic event. It needn't cost much. We were lucky to have a beautiful candelabra as the center of attraction—the kind that has the little glass cups that votive lights will fit into. We filled it with small scented candles which are colorful as well as fragrant.

Then we bought votive lights—you can get 18 for about a dollar—and set them in baking cups. We used the foil cups with multi-colored paper liners...and scattered them all over, down the buffet table, on serving tables, on end tables, everywhere. They made as pretty a picture as anyone could wish for. And we left the electric lights off.

Now to the menu. A beautiful but non-alcoholic punch because there would be a lot of youngsters present—quite a young couple getting married. If you want to spike this, all you have to do is add vodka. (You'll have to double or triple all of the ingredients in the following recipes, depending on the number of people.)

For 24 punch cups, pour over block of ice in punch bowl—all ingredients chilled—2 pint bottles cranberry juice cocktail, 1 qt. apple juice, 1 can (6 oz.) frozen lemonade, 1 can (6 oz.) frozen grapefruit juice, 1 can (6 oz.) pineapple juice. Add 2 bottles (29 oz.) carbonated water. Stir gently just enough to mix. Add 12 orange slices, halved.

For added interest, do what we did—use a fruited ice block instead of just a plain one. Easiest thing in the world to do. Arrange a layer of strawberries, orange slices and mint sprigs (or any other fruit combination) in a mold or clean coffee can. Add just enough water to cover and freeze. Repeat layers until mold or can is filled. Make in advance and store in freezer. To unmold, dip in hot water. As the ice melts, in the punch bowl, the fruit floats to the surface and makes the punch even prettier.

To go with the punch, plates of assorted cheeses...relish trays...chip and dip, especially if there's kids around. To go with the dinner, lots of little rolls and butter and plenty of the best coffee you can make.

Ham is always perfect for a buffet dinner. Instead of just serving it sliced, we had ham rolls (sliced ham rolled over thick soda straws—which could be used to pick up the ham, no sticky fingers) arranged spoke fashion on plates (beautiful old-fashioned unmatched-on-purpose dishes). If you can find the right kind of ham, you can make ham cornucopias—wouldn't you know we couldn't when we wanted it. We'll give you the recipe anyway—it takes very firm ham to roll in this fashion and stuff.

For four (we said you had to multiply) hard cook two eggs. Slice olives into about 24 rings. Start with equal parts of cottage cheese and sour cream, chives and watercress (optional), coarsely chopped; then add, about 1/2 tsp. at a time, English dry mustard and Indian curry mix (optional) and adjust seasoning with salt and pepper. Spread mixture on 8 slices dark smoked or ordinary ham and roll them into cornucopias; hold together with party picks if necessary. Put a tsp. of red caviar (optional) into each open end and plug with rounds of hard-cooked egg. Decorate top of each cornucopia with olive rings, with a bit of red pimento in the center of each ring.

Serve with a choice of sauces, if you feel so inclined. We only used one. Suggestions:

Sour Cream Dill Sauce: Beat 1 egg until fluffy and lemon colored. Add 1 tsp. salt, pinch of pepper and sugar, 4 tsp. lemon juice, 1 tsp. grated onion, 2 tbsp. finely cut dill, 1-1/2 cups sour cream. Stir until blended and chill. Makes about 2 cups.

Horseradish Sauce: Melt 3 tbsp. butter in saucepan. Add 3 tbsp. flour and stir with a wire whisk until blended. Add 1-1/2 cups beef bouillon all at once, stirring vigorously with the whisk until the mixture is smooth and thickened. Season with horseradish to taste. Makes about 1-1/2 cups.

To go with the ham, an elegant Mousse of Green Peas. We put ours into a four-leaf clover mold, but you can use any kind you have on hand.

For four servings, put into the container of an electric blender 1 envelope unflavored gelatin and 1 cup boiling water; cover and blend on high speed 40 sec. Add 2 cups cooked peas, fresh or frozen, 1/2 tsp. salt, 1/8 tsp. white pepper; cover and blend at slow speed 40 sec. longer. Remove the cover and with the motor on add 1 cup sour cream. Pour the mousse into 3-cup mold and chill. For added interest, drop some whole peas into the mold before putting in refrigerator.

A delightful accompaniment is Sampan Salad. This can be served in cucumber boats if it's a small gathering, but we decided not to since there were MANY people and we already had something green. It's marvelous either way. We'll give you the recipe for the cucumber boats in case you'd like to do it that way; otherwise, just discard the shells and serve it in bowls. It has a really different flavor and is so easy to make you'll wonder why you haven't tried it before.

For eight, remove a lengthwise slice from 8 large cucumbers; reserve for sails. Scoop out pulp from cucumbers, dice, sprinkle with 2 tbsp. vinegar and 1 tsp. salt. Sprinkle cucumber shells with salt; invert to drain. Combine 2-1/2 cups cubed cooked chicken, 3/4 can chow mein noodles. Drain diced cucumber; add to chicken. Combine 1-1/2 cups mayonnaise with 1-1/2 tbsp. soy sauce; toss with chicken mixture. Heap into cucumber boats, sprinkle with remaining noodles and with paprika. Cut reserved cucumber peel strips into sails, spear with toothpicks and set into boats.

A really good macaroni salad is also great—and a big difference in the one we made is the use of lemon juice. Try it, you'll be surprised.

For 6 to 8 servings, cook 2 cups elbow macaroni as directed, rinse with cold water, drain. Mix 1/2 cup mayonnaise with 1 tbsp. lemon juice, 1 tsp. salt, 1 tsp. sugar. Combine cooled macaroni with 1 tomato, diced, 1 cup diced celery, 2 pimientos, chopped, 1-1/2 tbsp. green pepper, chopped, 1/4 tsp. celery seed, and mayonnaise mixture, blending thoroughly. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves or from large bowl and garnish with radish roses or paprika.

One of the prettiest and most colorful desserts you can serve is individual fruit tarts. You can make the tart shells yourself or you can buy them already baked and ready to be filled.

You can use fresh fruit and glaze it with partially set Jello or you can use pie filling. In either case, you can garnish as desired. For this dinner, in the interest of time, we used pie filling—we had 48 tarts plus everything else in great quantity all over the kitchen and we had to save time somewhere. If you're going to do them this way, we will specify a brand. Thank You Brand pie filling works wonderfully. And you have a wonderful opportunity for both flavorful and colorful combinations.

For the fruit, we used raspberry, blueberry, pineapple, apricot, cherry. For the pudding, we used vanilla, lemon, coconut cream. All you have to do is half fill the tart shells with pudding, mound them with fruit after the pudding sets, garnish. Garnish with cherries, mandarin orange sections, pineapple chunks, whatever seems appropriate. Decorate further with whipped cream, if desired—we didn't.

Now everyone who was at the rehearsal dinner and the family dinner the next day will know how we prepared all these little items. (Stop asking and clip the doggone column.)

HEAT HURTS CHERRIES

LA GRANDE, Ore. (AP) — Union County agriculture officials say cherry growers in the area may lose as much as $250,000 this year following a month of hot, dry weather.

Paul Johnson, an orchard keeper at Pumpkin Ridge in the eastern part of the state, said a thermometer showed 100 degrees or more for 10 days of the month-long spell and temperatures were above 90 degrees for most of the other 20 days.

One large firm said the weather had rendered its entire crop unusable for anything but salvage material.

FIRST CHURCH of the NAZARENE

REV. ALLEN R. KILLEN
Evangelist/Singer

OCTOBER 5 thru 10 - 7 PM NIGHTLY

REV. ALLEN R. KILLEN of Charleston, W. Va. is a dedicated and talented young man. A dynamic preacher and outstanding gospel singer, he is now serving in full-time evangelism.

The son of a minister, he was converted as a teen-ager. He served four years in the United States Air Force before entering college. During his college days he traveled through many states, singing with a gospel quartet. He enjoyed a successful pastoral ministry in the South prior to entering the field of evangelism.

In sermon or in song this versatile Christian worker has only one desire—to exalt our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ and to offer full salvation to all men.

His dual talents enable Mr. Killen to serve effectively as song evangelist or preacher in camp meetings, city-wide and area crusades, holiness conventions or revival campaigns. He often combines both abilities in these meetings.

In order to share his ministry in song Mr. Killen's rich baritone voice has been recorded by Heart Warming Records on three long-play albums entitled, "The Will of God for Me," "God's Great Grace," and "When the Song of the Lord Began."

Sports Highlights On Television

SATURDAY

BASEBALL—The American League Play-off will begin at 1:00 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12. Teams playing in this series will be the Oakland Athletics against last year's World Series winner's, the Baltimore Orioles.

At 4:00 p.m., Chs. 2, 6 and 12 will televise the first game of the National League Play-offs. At press time, it was not known whether the Pittsburgh Pirates, winners in the East Division, will play the San Francisco Giants.

FOOTBALL—Highlights of the Buffalo Bills' last game will be seen on Buffalo Bill Highlights on Ch. 7 at 1:00 p.m.

This week NCAA Football will feature what should prove to be a very exciting game as Notre Dame, who is ranked second in the country, will play Michigan State at 1:45 p.m. on Ch. 7.

At 11:30 p.m., Ch. 10 will televise a tape of Penn State, who has won its first two games, playing Air Force. The game will be shown in its entirety.

WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS—This week's program at 5:00 p.m. on Ch. 7 will feature the Trenton, N.J. 300, which features Indy-style cars; and the World Cup Gymnastics Championships, taped in Miami. Top American entrant is Cathy Rigby, the only woman to win a medal in gymnastics.

SUNDAY

FOOTBALL—At press time, the NBC network had not decided which game will be televised at 1:00 p.m. on Chs. 6 and 12. The following are the games, out of which one will be picked: Baltimore-New England; New York Jets-Miami; San Diego-Pittsburgh; Buffalo-Minnesota; or Green Bay-Cincinnati.

The San Francisco 49ers, who can rely on the arm of John Brodie, will face the Philadelphia Eagles, who lost last week by a large margin to Dallas, at 1:00 p.m. on Chs. 4, 10 and 35.

At 2:00 p.m., Ch. 2 will televise the game between the Buffalo Bills and the Minnesota Vikings. The Vikings were upset last week by the Chicago Bears.

At 4:00 p.m., Chs. 4, 10 and 35 will televise the game between the New York Giants and the St.

Louis Cardinals. Both teams have won and lost one game.

BASEBALL—The second game in the National League play-offs will be seen at 4:00 p.m. on Chs. 2, 6 and 12. The Pittsburgh Pirates will play the Western champs, undecided at press time.

MONDAY

FOOTBALL—The game this week on ABC Monday Night Football on Ch. 7 at 9:00 p.m. promises to be a real thriller as the Oakland Raiders take on the Cleveland Browns. Both teams have reliable quarterbacks, the Browns with Nelson and Oakland with Lamonica. The Browns also have the great running of Leroy Kelly.

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY

BASEBALL—Both the fourth and fifth game of the baseball play-offs will be covered if necessary on Chs. 2, 6 and 12.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, FOR SATURDAY, OCTOBER 2,

ARIES (March 21 to April 20) — Don't become tense or fretful because of past errors or misunderstandings. Alter what you should, then look up and FORWARD.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21) — Many small things may be easier to do than one big one now. Whatever your obligations, tackle them with the will to win. And, remember, there is more than one way to succeed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21) — You are just about left on your own now to decide on the means to gain benefits, how to parlay efforts to get the most with the least expenditure. But conclusions must be accurate.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23) — If a thing has changed for "the worse," drop it; accept equally quickly something which will be an improvement. The point is: You MUST be decisive; don't just sit on the sidelines.

LEO (July 24 to August 23) — If adaptability, imagination and energies are wisely directed, you and others whom you influence will draw readily on success patterns. This is no day for dawdling.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23) — Grievances? Talk them over sensibly, not heatedly, since angry words will widen the breach. If you avoid extremes, you can have a satisfactory day.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23) — Take a look and see if you are going downhill in any matter through carelessness, not noticing as you go along. Don't be fooled by flattery. Face FACTS!

SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22) — Review the week's standing. Can you note better methods for the one ahead? Usually you are progressive all along the line. Don't fail yourself now.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21) — Ease a driving pace, accelerate a sluggish one. Stay in the sure, logical route of steady accomplishment -- with even disposition. Your poise will impress.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20) — Adapting yourself to circumstances -- even unusual ones -- may enable you to benefit in a very heart-warming way. Make decisions with the future in mind.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19) — Before you finish this day, check whether you have completed items that must be finished, or have skipped details, overlooked important factors. Tune in!

PISCES (February 20 to March 20) — If you missed the mark somewhere, go over causes and effects. A change in methods and reasoning may be necessary.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

(c) 1971, by The Chicago Tribune

Physical fitness is difficult to define. Yet, most of us know that it is acquired thru regular exercise, a balanced diet, adequate rest, moderation and avoiding obesity. But what does it mean to be physically fit and what are the advantages?

Dr. Roger Bannister, the first four-minute miler, defines fitness as "a state of mental and physical harmony which enables someone to carry on his occupation to the best of his ability with great happiness." His definition conveys the message that we try to stress. The individual who is fit performs daily tasks with minimum stress on the heart, lungs and other organs and at maximum efficiency. Fitness may also affect the rate of aging and thus prolong life. Many of our oldest people have been active all their lives.

Can physical fitness be measured? Yes, many tests are available to evaluate mobility, muscle strength and respiratory ventilation. However, they are not always satisfactory because many of the tasks being performed are not an indication of total physical fitness. For example, because 29 per cent of 12-year-old American boys could not chin themselves, they were considered poor physical specimens. Chinning is popular in some countries to strengthen the arms and shoulders, but it is not done here.

Mobility (the angles of movement for various joints) varies with age and with use and disuse of the movable parts of the body. It is difficult to standardize for testing purposes. Muscle strength is evaluated with a dynamometer, but the machine does not measure total strength because reserve muscle strength and endurance is not considered. The intake of air when breathing and the transport of oxygen to working muscles requires more complicated tests, yet the results are of great importance to the competitive athlete, such as the long distance runner.

The average person does not need or want the physique of an Atlas and is not training for the Olympics. Nevertheless, the advantages of fitness greatly outweigh the disadvantages.

REPLY

When the abdomen is opened for any type of surgery, it is customary to remove the appendix at the same time, provided it does not increase the risk. This organ which is expendable is located only a few inches to the right of the uterus and easily removed. It is an excellent idea, because when it is gone appendicitis will never develop.

LEFTOVER TEA

G. W. writes: If tea is kept for a day or more after it was brewed, does it become toxic? I have heard it said that drinking leftover iced tea can be injurious to health. P. S. It was refrigerated.

REPLY

No, there is no harm in drinking leftover tea. But standing doesn't enhance the taste of the beverage.

NERVOUS STOMACH

J. B. writes: Can a person with a nervous stomach eat fresh fruit?

REPLY

Yes. It's not the fruit but the nerves that bring on the distress.

Jamestown Ceremony Unites Area Couple

The Salvation Army in Jamestown, New York was the setting for the wedding of Violet D. Allenson and Mark S. Kane on Saturday, August 21, 1971. Brig. Lennart Carlson officiated at 1 p.m. Mrs. Nancy Maeder provided piano music for the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Allenson of Sugar Grove, Pa. The parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Kane of Russell, Pa.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride appeared in a gown of white embroidered organdy in a Juliet style with leg of mutton sleeves. She wore her great-grandmother's wedding corsage at her waist. Her shoulder length veil was caught to a Juliet cap and she carried a colonial bouquet of red roses, daisies, carnations and corn flowers.

Miss Ellen Connolly of Harrisburg, Pa. was maid of honor. She was attired in a green dotted swiss gown. A three cornered scarf completed her ensemble and she carried a single long stemmed red rose.

Junior bridesmaids were Miss Karen Kane, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Lisa Peterson, cousin of the bride. They were both dressed in pink dotted swiss gowns and wore matching three-cornered scarves. They carried single long stemmed red roses.

The bride's nieces, Misses Kristine and Amy Nicklas, served as flower girls. They were gowned the same as the bridesmaids and carried baskets of flowers matching those in the bride's bouquet.

Patrick Wright was the bridegroom's best man. Ushers were Thomas Haner, Douglas Hoffman, Steven Wendell and Russell Southwell. The ringbearer was Eric Evinczik.

For her daughter's wedding, the mother of the bride chose an aqua dress with a white daisy corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore an apricot dress with a white daisy corsage.

A reception for 100 guests was held in the Church parlors. Mr. and Mrs. Burton Nicklas, sister and brother-in-law of the bride, served as master and mistress of ceremonies. Aides were Misses Joanne and Janice Kane, Miss Karen Bush, Miss Becky Peterson, Miss Elsa Carlson, Misses Tina and Jenny Stuart.

The new Mrs. Kane is a student at Edinboro State College, Warren Campus. Mr. Kane is employed by Larimer-

Norton, Russell. The newlyweds are making their home at 882 Follett Run rd., Warren.

Pre-nuptial affairs were given by Misses Chris Pace, Karen Bush, Becky Peterson; Mrs. Leroy Darling, Mrs. Burt Nicklas, Mrs. Dan Evinczik; Mrs. Robert Kane and daughters; and the women of the Salvation Army.

South St.

Hints From Heloise

DEAR HELOISE:

I recently came up with an idea, tried it, and it turned out so successfully I thought, "Why not send it to Heloise?"

My husband built floor-to-ceiling and wall-to-wall bookshelves in our family room. Next to these was a small alcove which looked very bare and needed something.

I decided to make it into a family picture gallery. I've always wanted to display favorite snapshots of the family but never had the right spot for them. Also frames for snapshots would be too expensive even if it were possible to find the right size.

I bought burlap adhesive-backed cloth in avocado green and light yellow. My husband cut out extra paneling into pieces (10 1/2" x 5 1/2" and 5 1/2" x 5 1/2"). I attached the burlap to these pieces of paneling and hung them on the wall in a rather haphazard arrangement along with several framed family portraits.

The small square pieces of paneling held only one snapshot, but the longer one holds three or four. I put the pictures on the covered paneling with household glue and also used plastic tape on some.

I even used some orange burlap without the adhesive backing and secured it to the paneling with wood staples.

The area turned into a conversation piece and is very colorful, besides giving me a chance to display snapshots too interesting to put away in drawers.

Now all we need is a spotlight.

Mrs. D. H.

DEAR HELOISE:

Did you ever get a letter all written, and stuffed into the envelope, and then go hunting for that address book that's always in a different place?

Why not write those couple of addresses that you use every week or two, along with the zip codes, on the box the envelopes are in. Then they are always right on hand.

And if you're organized enough to write to more than two people, you're organized enough to know where your address book is!

Principle Of Life

By John A. Squires, Minister, United Methodist Church Russell-Akeley Churches

Tomorrow many Christians will be observing World-Wide Communion. This observance commemorated the principle of finding life by losing it. Such a principle may not be accepted by everyone, but isn't it true that most of us have experienced at some time or other that by giving we realize more from life than we do through seeking our own pleasures? Suppose for instance we have set out to find pleasure or happiness for ourselves -- we have sought it by way of our own self-indulgence -- but at the end of our search all we had for our seeking was a dreadful, unsatisfied feeling. But some other time we were not looking for pleasure, we were not expecting to find it -- but it came in complete forgetfulness of ourselves through our doing something for someone else. It may have been that the call came when we were about to set off on our own pleasure -- and we were annoyed that we had to give time to another, and yet, in giving it -- and ourselves -- we found a pleasure which we would not have found the other way.

The person who gives his life in the service of others, and above all in the service of Jesus Christ, and loses it in him -- that person finds life which is the life indeed. The Christian life in all its depth and richness is found by the surrender of our wills to the will of God in Jesus Christ, by the death of our inclinations, and instead turning to the duty of obeying God by the consecration of our lives to the service of Jesus Christ. "If any man would come after me," said Jesus, "Let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me."

Remember the Cross. No one could pretend that this is any easy way. On World-Wide Communion Sunday we remember that Jesus of Nazareth died for the sin of the world. The loving dying for the loveless; the just for the unjust; the sinless for the sinful many; the One dying for the salvation of the whole world. Jesus died that the world might live through Him.

Let the thoughts of his act bring us back to the great principle of life, that whosoever would save his life shall lose it; but whosoever would lose his life for Christ's sake and the Gospels, the same shall find it.

Foresters Headline Environmental Protection Meeting On October 12

Submitted
By FRANKLIN R. HOFF

Many conservation-minded Pennsylvanians are dissatisfied with endless talk about the environmental crisis. They want to know how to do something about it. A group of local life-long conservationists are calling attention to the accomplishments of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association in promoting an understanding of ecology and quality environment for more than 85 years, and its contributions to the preservation of Pennsylvania's natural resources and wild life since it began in 1886.

To this end, a meeting has been called, to be held Tuesday, October 12th, at 8 p.m. at Camp Kirkwood, formerly Boy Scout Camp Jeffmore, on Jackson Run Road on Route 69, seventents of a mile west of the North Warren intersection with Route 62. Its purpose is to bring together conservation-minded people of this region to discuss what can be done to promote environmental protection and wise use of land and natural resources.

Spearheading this session are Jim Vessey, recently retired from a distinguished career with the United States Forest Service; Robert K. Ache, district-forester, Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources; Bernie Wingert, county agent; and Larry Stotz, retired Sheffield district forester, famous for his writings about the outdoors; and other concerned citizens.

By special arrangement the meeting will be headlined by Pennsylvania's state forester, Samuel Cobb and Penn State extension forester, Edward Barrand, as leaders. They will join in exploring the present situation, pointing out the needs and leading discussions.

Vessey emphasizes the solid accomplishments of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association from the time it was organized in 1886 to the present moment. It was organized in Philadelphia by a group alarmed by unchecked destruction of Pennsylvania's forests, with its threat to the environment, climate, economy, water supply and recreation. The founders recognized that the key to prosperity in the Keystone State lies forever in its forest resources.

The small group of aroused citizens who started the conservation crusade in Pennsylvania organized the first state forestry association in the United States.

Actually, it was initiated by a group of prominent Philadelphia women. They enlisted in support of their cause the most distinguished leaders in conservation and forest development of their day. Its first president, Prof. Joseph Trimble Rothrock, is remembered today as the "Father of American Forestry." The influence of the fledgling society turned out to be tremendous.

Upon its organization in 1886, it established its journal, "Forest Leaves," changed in 1951 to "Pennsylvania Forests."

The Pennsylvania Forestry Association was influential in bringing about the proclamation of the first Arbor Day in Pennsylvania in 1887. They were responsible for the appointment in 1887 of the first committee to study and report on Pennsylvania's forests. In 1895 at their urging, a Division of Forestry was created in the Pennsylvania State Department of Agriculture. Dr. Rothrock was appointed its first Commissioner of Forestry. In 1901 a separate State Department of Forestry was established, largely through the Association's urging, as was also establishment at Pennsylvania State College of a Department of Forestry as a technical school. Its graduate foresters have since headed Forestry Departments of many states, and been prominent in the U.S. Forest Service, as well as private commercial forest operations.

Over the years, as practical conservationists, the Pennsylvania Forestry Association has exerted influence far beyond their numbers—because they have been well organized, have been able to put pressure on legislators and public officials, and have worked unceasingly to develop an informed public understanding of conservation.

In an article in the 1971 spring issue of Pennsylvania Forestry, Henry Clepper, an authority on the history of American forestry, comments on the achievements of the Pennsylvania Forestry Association from its beginning: "...we see how Pennsylvania's pioneer conservationists, though a small minority, had the power of making themselves heard. Their opinions could not be disregarded when they chose to express themselves. They found that government would respond to pressure when they were sufficiently concerned to apply it."

Clepper observes further: "It is pertinent to emphasize that the movement they started continues to flourish as a popular cause, and every year increases its following." "Now, during the third quarter of the 20th century, public interest in conservation, which is often equated with the quality of the environment, is strong to the point of militancy. In our time, the despoiling of a resource, whether by an individual, a company or an entire industry, is considered anachronistic as well as anti-social."

"There is a feeling abroad," he continues, "especially among young adults, that clean air and water, scenic beauty, and a livable world are more important than money. Their expressed desire is to repair and remodel man's environment. And they are quite likely to do it."

It is interesting to note that Pennsylvania's original conservationist was William Penn himself. In 1681, in his Charter of Rights to the Colonists he says: "That in clearing the ground care be taken to leave one acre of trees for every five acres cleared, especially to preserve oak and mulberries for silk and shipping." This was the second public recognition in America of need for forest preservation. The first was an ordinance passed by Plymouth Colony in 1526 prohibiting cutting trees on Colony lands without official consent.

Pennsylvania's great forester and conservationist, Gifford Pinchot defines conservation most aptly: "conservation means the wise use of the earth and its resources."

According to Vessey and his associates, if anyone wants a piece of the action in conservation today, they can find it in the Pennsylvania Forestry Association.

Anyone interested in attending the October 12th meeting may contact Vessey at the U.S. Forest Service Office; Ache at the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources; or Bernie Wingert at the Agricultural Extension Office in the Warren County Court House.
